Medical Group trains for emergencies

Senior Airman Candace Sheppard treats at a mock neck injury for Airman 1st Class Kristen Kahsen, both of the 355th Medical Group, during an EMT rodeo held in honor of national Emergency Medical Technician's Week, May 20 through 26. The Medical Group panels competed against each other during the rodeo by responding to mock vehicle accidents, hazardous material accidents and search and rescue patient care. The Blue Panel won the Rodeo; the team was comprised of Airmen 1st Class Christina Carder, Brittany Ross, Stacey English and Sharlott Belgica.

D-M scores 'outstanding' on security inspection

The Defense Threat Reduction Agency gave Davis-Monthan AFB an "outstanding" performance rating when they conducted a Joint Staff Integrated Vulnerability Assessment May 6 through 1.

This assessment focused on the installation's antiterrorism and force protection program and assessed the wing's ability to respond to increased threat postures.

D-M has increased its antiterrorism and force protection profile by 97 percent since DTRA's last inspection in May 1998.

The increase is phenomenal and DTRA stated that the Desert Lightning Wing is in the top 98 percent of all Department of Defense Installations for antiterrorism and force protection.

"Everyone from senior wing leadership down to our youngest airman working on the flightline had a direct impact on this successful assessment," said Master Sgt. Ron Hoover, 355th Security Forces Squadron installation anti-terrorism/force protection officer. (Courtesy 355th SFS)

UPAR responsibilities

UPARs are responsible for being the “eyes and ears” of the public affairs office. Each and every squadron on base has unique individuals in it that have an interesting story to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Each of your squadrons are also making improvements to the methods or process that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects. UPARs are responsible for getting the information to the public affairs staff in a usable format and in a timely manner.

Not every idea is going to get picked up. The staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general, but it never hurts to present ideas to your squadron UPARs so that they can judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal and forward it to the staff.

The following are some of the areas we hope to utilize UPARs to tell your squadron's story (based on skills):

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions
- ◆ Review their squadron's submissions to the base TV Channel (75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

Bank of America
Concern: I have been informed Bank of America is closing its branch on base and I was wondering if there will be another banking facility on base.

Response: I understand your concerns with the closure of Bank of America's branch here at D-M and can assure you that we are working hard to provide interim (and long-range) solutions for your banking needs.

Although the existing facility is being torn down to make way for a new $4 million AAFES Car Care Center, we are "sighting locations for BOA to build a new full-service banking facility.

Of course, that's a long-range fix and doesn't satisfy your immediate ATM needs. I also approved a walk-up ATM at the commissary.

We're expediting agreements and site approvals and hope to have limited ATM capability in place within 60 days. We'll publish more information as it becomes available in upcoming editions of the Desert Airman.

If you have any additional questions or concerns, please contact the banking liaison officer at 8-5578.

Haircuts

Concern: Before I comment, I'm in no way trying to embarrass anyone, and I apologize if I offend anyone, because that is not my intention. My comment has to do with the BX barbershop.

It seems that many of the barbers are not capable of cutting the hair of African-American males to their request.

I have witnessed on numerous occasions, African-American males having to wait or request another barber, because most of the other barbers in there weren't capable of cutting their hair to their request.

For instance the "fade," a very popular style in the Air Force and fairly easy to do, most of the barbers cannot do. This complaint is not meant to make anyone feel uncomfortable, but I just feel this is a legitimate issue.

Response: Thank you for expressing your concerns regarding the BX Barber Shop.

AAFES management recognizes the diversity of our military force and always tries to employ barbers who are capable of cutting many different types and styles of hair.

Often it takes a few visits to become comfortable with a specific barber, and what you may have noticed was that certain individuals would prefer to wait for the barber of their choice since they have established a comfortable relationship with a particular barber.

If you have any other questions or concerns, call Rob Werner, the AAFES Service Business Manager, at 8-3904.

41st ECS troops save the Air Force $200,000 through self-help project

The 41st Electronic Combat Squadron saved the Air Force approximately $200,000 with a self-help project that began in 1999. The focus of the project was the renovation of Building 130.

The building is currently the home of the 41st ECS maintenance/mobility sections; it was first used as a dormitory for rowdy war-era airmen.

"The years, however, haven't been particularly kind. For this reason, the 41st ECS initiated, received funding, and accomplished a complete facelift for this aging facility," said 2nd Lt. Paul Schwennesen, 41st ECS.

What makes the project unique is that it was done entirely by 41st ECS maintainers.

"From new tile to a modern ceiling grid, this has been a full-fledged effort," said Schwennesen. When all is said and done, Building 130 will boast new floors, walls, doors, ceilings, carpet, furniture, bathroom fixtures, and in a fit of esprit, a permanently embossed squadron insignia in the floor.

A few mementoes were dredged from the walls of the building that spoke of the past.

A beer can sporting an "antique" pop-top was stashed carefully away from authoritative eyes for 30 years and a newspaper from the 1970s brandishes hauntingly familiar headlines of fighting in the Balkans.

Some of the people who spent the most time on the project included: Senior Master Sgt. Ed Roseman, who coordinated and led the upstairs renovation, Staff Sgt. Christopher Bennett, who coordinated first-floor renovations, and Airman Cainan Kennedy, the only participant to have witnessed the project from start to finish.

"Using the experience and skill within the organization has proven to be a decidedly cost effective way of doing business.

Additionally, the project has given many an opportunity to learn new skills and develop a sense of ownership in the organization," said Schwennesen. (Courtesy 41st ECS)

Staff Sgt. J. Elaine Hunnicutt

Captain Karin Johnson, 355th Wing U.S. Savings Bond project officer, explains this year's savings bond campaign to Col. Bobby Wilkes, 355th Wing commander.

D-M kicks off U.S. savings bond campaign today

The base U.S. savings bond campaign begins today and continues through June 30.

During this time, representatives from every unit on base will offer the opportunity for all military and civilian members to make an investment for both family and country by purchasing savings bonds.

The Department of Defense offers both Series EE and I bonds. The Series EE bonds earn a fixed interest rate, with new rates released by the U.S. Treasury Department every May 1 and Nov. 1, currently 4.5 percent.

The Series I Bonds, the newest savings bonds brought into circulation, earn both a fixed and a variable interest rate.

The fixed rate lasts for 30 years, currently 3 percent. The variable, or inflation, rate changes every six months, currently 1.44 percent.

The composite rate for the I Bond is currently 5.92 percent. Both the Series EE and Series I Bonds earn a savings rate higher than a regular savings account at local credit unions and banks.

"I hear many people say that savings bonds do not earn enough interest to make it worth their while. However, with today's volatile market, investing in savings bonds is a nice complement to other higher-risk investments. The truth is savings bonds are not designed to compete with rate returns from 401K plans or mutual funds," said Captain Karin Johnson, 355th Wing U.S. Savings Bond Campaign project officer.

"They are, however, able to support your investments. Say you put all your discretionary money into investments but nothing into any kind of savings. What happens if an emergency happens and you need fast cash? Where do you turn? Your investments? Credit cards? Your regular savings account earning 1 to 2 percent interest? Loans? Wouldn't it be better to save some of that money into a liquid fund so you can leave your investments alone and not increase your personal debt?"

"U.S. savings bonds are liquid six months after the issue date. And, if you establish an emergency fund, wouldn't it be great to receive competitive rates, state tax exemption, federal tax deferment, and make your investment through payroll deduction? U.S. Savings Bonds can offer you this and more," said Johnson.

To see more benefits of purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds, to compute the value of U.S. Savings Bonds you currently own, or for more information on interest rates, log onto www.savingsbonds.gov.

More than 55 million Americans currently hold 800 million U.S. Savings Bonds. To purchase bonds or to increase your current allotment, contact your unit point of contact. (Courtesy 355th Wing U.S. Savings Bond project officer)

101 Days of Summer kicks off

Volunteer NCOs dressed as "Larry and Vince," crash test dummies, reminded Team D-M warriors to enjoy a safe Memorial Day weekend. Last weekend was the start of the 101 Critical Days of Summer, a time when accidents traditionally increase as people enjoy more outdoor activities and vacations. Wing officials encouraged Team D-M to keep safety at the forefront of their summer activities.

OSS emphasizes flightline driving safety practices

Airfield Management along with the help of squadron vehicle control officers, have implemented a computer-based flightline-driving training program.

This program can be found at https://intranet.dm.af.mil/oss355/OSA/flightline\_driving.htm. The Web site gives a complete explanation of the basic layouts, speed limits and general rules common for all Air-Force airfields.

Listed below are some of the basic rules governing flightline driving on Davis-Monthan AFB.

Speed limits:

Vehicle parking areas	5 MPH
Aircraft parking ramps	5 MPH
Flightline road	15 MPH
Taxiways	25 MPH

b. While driving on the flightline speed limits must be obeyed.

c. Taxiing aircraft and Emergency Vehicles always have the right of way.

d. All individuals operating vehicles on the flightline (except contractors and commercial vendors) must have a valid flightline drivers certificate of competency card (Air Form Form 483) in their possession. For more information call base operations at 8-4315. (Courtesy 355th Operation Support Squadron)

CS emphasizes computer security while deployed

Information systems and networks are the key to achieving information superiority and decision dominance over adversaries.

The security of these systems is everyone's responsibility. Trusted and timely information enables warfighters to accomplish their missions. Thus, sound information assurance programs and practices are essential to mission success.

Information Assurance is also a paramount concern for all Air Force members deploying as part of the AEF; it is a mission-critical element of aerospace operations. The Expeditionary Aerospace Force concept is a different way for the Air Force to meet global commitments.

"Our AEFs provide field commanders a light, lean, lethal, and rapid response to crisis anywhere in the world. We must remember while security threats in the 21st Century will vary in character and intensity, IA will remain a critical part of supporting the AEFs," said 2nd Lt. Erin Tams.

IA is a triad consisting of people/training, systems/technical tools and policies/procedures that ensure operational availability of the vital information.

Its much more than the traditional information protection disciplines, like COMPUSEC, COMSEC, EMSEC, it also includes planning, operating, optimizing, maintaining, and defending the activities needed to create and sustain communications networks.

"IA takes the collective effort of all network users whether at home or deployed supporting AEFs," said Tams. (Courtesy 355th CS)

The Red Cross is having a blood drive June 13 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the community center. Call Tech. Sgt. Liz Santamaria at 8-9048 or the Red Cross at 917-2820 to schedule an appointment.

Dental clinic entrance to close

The Dental Clinic entrance, the south entrance of Building 400 that leads directly into the Copper Panel and Dental Clinic, will close today for construction.

The entrance will remain closed until the new ambulatory health-care clinic addition is completed. The project is slated for completion in May 2002.

Access to these areas will have to be made indirectly through the main clinic.

The medical staff suggests that patients allow extra time for parking and walking to appointments. (Courtesy 355th Medical Group)

AAFES
Army & Air Force Exchange Service

By Maj. Michael Pelletier
355th Component Repair Squadron

(Editor's note: Major Pelletier passed command of the 355th CRS Tuesday, and will report to a new assignment in Korea.)

By the time you read this I will have passed command of the 355th Component Repair Squadron to my successor.

I will also have celebrated my 16th year of service in the world's most powerful Air Force.

The last four of those years have been here in the 355th Wing, the "Desert Lightning" wing. In my time in the Air Force I have served at six different bases, in 11 different organizations and at four major commands. I would like to take a few moments to share with you some of the things I have seen in that time.

I have seen the B-2 "Spirit" bomber fly in to a base for a naming ceremony to recognize a state's contributions to the aerospace industry and airpower.

The ceremony was presided over by Gen. Richard Hawley, then-commander of Air Combat Command. More than 11,000 military and civilian personnel attended the ceremony.

After the ceremony, the bomber spent the weekend on the ramp on static display during the base's semi-annual air show, where more than 400,000 people got a close look at America's most technologically-advanced bomber. I have seen a squadron spend more than six years deployed, supporting contingency operations over Bosnia, and another squadron pack up and twice deploy to the desert to fly combat missions over Iraq enforcing the no-fly zone.

I have been in a squadron where we took an upgraded-capability aircraft from a 37-percent mission-capable rate, to declaring initial operational capability, to flying combat sorties during Operation Allied Force.

I have been in a wing that earned the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award and was one of three finalists for the coveted Clarence McMullen Memorial Daedalian Weapon System Trophy for performing the best aircraft maintenance in ACC.

I've been in a squadron that was one of three ACC finalists for another important maintenance recognition trophy, the Maintenance Effectiveness Award.

I've seen millions of dollars poured into quality-of-life programs such as new dormitory furniture and carpet, numerous base infrastructure and facility improvements, and groundbreaking for a new primary care clinic and fitness center. I've seen a security forces squadron selected "Best in the Air Force" and a civil engineering squadron earn honors as "Best in ACC."

I've seen a wing successfully tackle the tough issues of driving under the influence of alcohol, underage drinking, illegal drug usage and suicide prevention and make solid progress in curbing the number of each incident. The wing leadership fully understood people are our most precious resource and proactively implemented several programs with great results.

I've met three commanders of ACC, the vice commander of ACC, and one numbered Air Force commander. All of them walked away with high praise for the shops they visited, the people they met and the wing that hosted them.

I've also seen the President of the United States leave a base wearing a souvenir squadron hat.

Chem warfare concept of operations changing

By 1st Lt. Michael Freeman
355th Civil Engineer Squadron

If you have been stationed on the Korean peninsula in the past few years, you have seen vastly different procedures for chemical warfare defense. If you have not been stationed there, perhaps you have heard of "Split MOPP" (Mission Oriented Protective Posture) or "the 10-foot rule." What you would definitely notice is that chemical warfare defense in Korea is very different from what most people are accustomed to. This is a result of Osan and Kunsan Air Bases serving as one test bed for the Air Force's new Chemical Warfare Concept of Operations.

The need for this new CONOPS was born out of the fact that the old procedures for operating in a chemical environment were simply unacceptable. Shutting down an entire air base after a chemical attack for days, even weeks, defeats our entire mission. We are here to put bombs on target and in order to do that, we must be able to launch, recover, and maintain aircraft. This became evident during exercise Coral Breeze '97 and ChemWar 2000.

The experts turned to research in order to better understand how these deadly weapons of mass destruction will impact an air base. For three years, the Air Force Civil Engineer Support Agency conducted an aggressive testing and analysis of chemical weapons, delivery systems, and protective equipment at Dugway Proving Grounds and in the Czech Republic.

Pacific Air Forces took the lead in applying the new concepts into air base defense. Over the course of a few years and through many different exercises many procedures were tested. Some innovations were quickly discarded while others were found to be easily implemented and extremely beneficial to sortie generation and overall mission effectiveness. Two of the most interesting innovations are split MOPPs and the 10-foot rule:

Split MOPP is a result of the understanding that the most probable delivery system, ballistic missiles, have a limited capacity to carry chemical weapons. Even in the worst case scenario the base will not be "slimed" with chemical weapons. More than likely only certain portions of the base will actually be contaminated. Then depending upon the type of contamination, the weather conditions, and many other factors it is possible to get a majority of the base populace out of MOPP 4 and back into MOPP 2 while only keeping those in contaminated area remain in the higher and hotter MOPP level.

The 10-foot rule is a result of the research on how chemicals react to different surfaces. Pavements were found to absorb chemicals rather quickly while metals surfaces bond with the chemicals. So it is often possible to get personnel out of higher MOPP levels very quickly after a chemical attack. Then when individuals are within 10 feet of a

Things

A wing I was in did an absolutely superb job during an ACC Inspector General Phase I Operational Readiness Inspection, earning unprecedented "Combat Ready" ratings in all 62 rated areas. This same wing also did a stellar job during an Environmental Safety and Occupational Health Compliance Assessment and Management Program review, earning "benchmark" ratings for three of their programs.

I've been at a wing where we flew more than 38,600 hours one year, the highest of any ACC unit.

Despite this high sortie rate we did it safely, without a single major aircraft accident.

There are many other accomplishments I've seen in my time in the Air Force — these are just a few of them. The amazing thing is that all of the events I just described happened to me during the last four years here as a member of the "Desert Lightning" wing.

Those who have been here for just a short time should clearly see the warrior spirit reflected in all we do, and realize you are working with the finest professionals in ACC.

I used to tell my troops at commander's calls they are fortunate to be in a great wing like the 355th.

I tell them to take what they have seen here and savor it, because it is not like this in every wing they will go to.

I've always said there are two types of attention you can get — you can be in the gunsight or you can be in the limelight.

I think it's obvious where you would rather be, and at D-M we have definitely been in the limelight.

Over the last few years we have, in my opinion, done some spectacular things, and I have been very proud to be a part of it.

At times it was challenging, but in every case I saw the wing pull together to make the impossible happen.

So, Desert Lightning warriors, I salute you and say goodbye.

I've had the privilege and honor of commanding a truly outstanding squadron that made numerous contributions to the wing's accomplishments.

When you head off to your next assignment, take a moment to reflect on all you have been a part of at D-M.

When you stop and think about it, I hope you too realize this is the finest wing in the Air Force.

CONOPS

metal surface, such as operating a vehicle or maintaining an aircraft, they assume a higher MOPP level to insure their protection.

Innovations such as these and many others are currently being worked into an Air Force CONOPS based upon the tests run in Korea during the last few years.

The Air Force CONOPS will standardize training across the entire Air Force, which will greatly improve overall readiness. The goal is to improve our fighting capability in a chemical environment. The bottom line is that our gear is hot and tough to work in, so the less we have to wear the gear, the more effective we will be. These new procedures are focused on maximizing our fighting capability while protecting our troops. As we press forward toward our Phase II Operational Readiness Inspection, some of these changes will be implemented into our wing's procedures. The key to success is going to be the lean forward attitude of the Desert Lightning Wing. It's important that we all understand the changes are based on sound scientific research and are designed not only to protect the individual airman, but also to get airman out of those blazin' hot gas masks as quickly as possible.

Health Focus

Best way to treat acute back pain is rest, ice, caution

Many people will experience lower back pain at some time in their lives.

The types of treatment for lower back pain have ranged from complete bed rest to surgery.

However, the latest research has demonstrated that the best way to treat an acute episode of back pain is to do the following steps:

◆ Rest. A few days of decreased activity and modification of activities to prevent further injury is recommended.

◆ Apply ice or a bag of frozen vegetables (peas, corn etc.) wrapped in a damp towel to the back.

This can be performed 10 to 15 minutes per hour for at least the first day.

Continue to ice 10 to 15 minutes four to five times per day (or more) as needed for at least the next two to three days.

Moist heat can be applied after the acute phase of the injury (usually after the first 72 hours).

◆ Increase mobility. Attempt to move cautiously as often as possible from the onset of the injury.

Let pain be your guide, but try to avoid complete bed rest or inactivity.

Gradually resume your normal activities, walking, and light exercise as tolerated.

Most back injuries and pain will resolve within six to eight weeks from the initial onset as long as repetitive stresses and additional injuries are avoided.

However, if your symptoms continue to persist or get worse call or see a doctor for additional advice.

When is it an emergency?

You should see be seen in an emergency room immediately if you experience any of the following:

Loss of bowel or bladder control; numbness or tingling in your saddle region (anal or genital area); or difficulty or inability to walk due to leg weakness or loss of control.

There are many causes of back pain as well as several sources of pain that can mimic low back pain.

See a doctor as soon as possible if you have back pain which is not made better or worse by movements of the back or changes in position.

This may be referred from areas other than the muscles or joints of the back.

Please call your healthcare provider with any questions.

Since there are no walk-in services at the clinic, if you need to be seen for an acute (within 24 hours) appointment you need to call your assigned panel.

If you think you may have an emergency but aren't sure, call your assigned panel at the clinic and speak to the triage nurse.

On or off base, if you have a true emergency (loss of limb eyesight or life) call 911. (Courtesy of the 355th Medical Group)

June is Men's Health Month

Did you know?

Heart disease is the leading cause of death among men in the United States. Every 29 seconds, someone in this country will experience a coronary event, and about every minute, someone will die from one.

Men are 30 percent more likely to suffer a stroke than women.

Nearly 85 percent of lung cancers in men worldwide are related to smoking.

Men who watch television for three or more hours per day are twice as likely to be obese as men who watch for less than an hour.

Overall seven out of 11 adults visiting doctors are women -- despite the fact that men die younger than women.

Men who consume between two and six drinks per week have nearly half the risk of death as men who consume two or more drink per day.

In a recent study, the most sexually active men had a 50 percent lower mortality rate than the least sexually active men.

In a recent survey, nine of 10 individual reported feeling stress on a regular basis.

Wellness is something you have to plan and work toward. Don't wait until it's too late. Call your health care provider today for a wellness appointment. (Courtesy of the 355th Medical Group)

Air Force One

D-M major gets up close, personal as Presidential Advance Agent

By Angie Erickson
355th Wing Public Affairs

Sometimes opportunities come along that are so exciting that you just can't let them pass you by.

Maj. Gary Rudman, 355th Operations Group Standardization/Evaluation EC-130 navigator, seized the chance to go to work as a Presidential Advance Agent for Air Force One when he saw the job description posted on the Web (www.cc.hq.af.mil/cvam).

"I thought it looked very interesting and after reading the qualifications, I applied," he said.

He did not let the written responsibilities or general hiring information scare him off. He learned that a presidential advance agent would provide unparalleled worldwide support to Air Force One for presidential movements and out of country support to Air Force Two vice presidential movements. When selected, he would travel as a member of the White House Advance Team directing all aspects of logistics and security for AF-1 and AF-2. This duty is considered an additional duty of the highest importance and mediocrity cannot be accepted.

While Rudman said he knew the competition for the positions was tough, he felt confident that he had the experience that they were looking for. After submitting his package he was one of 12 who were selected from Air Combat Command to be interviewed at the Pentagon.

"The selection committee was looking for someone who had a good working knowledge of operations, the ability to problem solve and the ability to get along," he said.

After all, he explained, "There are a lot of details that have to be taken care of that must be coordinated through multiple civilian and government agencies for the arrival and departure of the president/vice president to and from the airport."

After the interview, he was selected for the two-year additional duty, and received initial training the next day. "The one-day training helps you to identify your checklist, but you learn the job from on-the-job-training and from the experiences of the lead agent," said Rudman.

He is now one of 65 PAAs deploying in two-member teams that must be available for seven to 10 temporary duty trips per year. Each trip averages seven days. However, if the duty is out of the country, it will average 14 days. He expects a total of 60-75 TDY-days per year.

"I absolutely love it," he says. "It is very exciting to travel and be a part of this mission."

Rudman is always in civilian clothes so that rank not be a factor when he interacting with the White House staff, Secret Service, White House Communications Agency, U.S. Embassy Staff, Presidential Pilot's Office or any other government agency who may be vital to the success of AF-1 or AF-2 mission.

"There is no room for error," he said. He cited then-President Ford's falling down the stairs as an example. "One mistake could be detrimental to the mission, and it will not be tolerated by the lack of attention to detail."

Maj. Gary Rudman

While he says that the tolerance for error is less than zero, the job definitely has its perks. He will take his wife, Jennifer, to Washington D.C. in September to a conference that will give her insight about his position. They will not only tour the White House, but take a helicopter ride over the city. As for his three children, well they are perfectly content to stay home because they know that they will might receive their AF-1 souvenirs.

"When I leave for the trips, my kids say, 'Daddy goes with the president!'"

Korean War Remembered

[Editor's note: As America recognizes its veterans (through the next two years) to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Korean War, the Desert Airman is chronicling the significant events.] The following significant Air Force events occurred during this week in 1951:

June 1

One flight of F-86s from the 336th Fighter Interceptor Squadron escorting B-29s engaged 18 MiG-15s, destroying two. A flight of B-29s, 343th Bombardment Squadron, defended itself against 22 MiG-15s in the vicinity of Sonchon. The MiGs destroyed one B-29 and damaged another, while the defenders destroyed two enemy jets. Far East Air Forces Special Air Mission C-47s dropped 15 Koreans into enemy held territory to retrieve parts from a crashed MiG-15. Unfortunately, communist forces captured all 15 Koreans. Maj. Gen. Frank Everest assumed command of 5th Air Force.

June 3

United Nations anti-aircraft artillery destroyed two 315th Air Division C-119s while the aircraft were attempting a resupply airdrop. This fratricide incident led to the adoption of new Identification-Friend-or-Foe procedures for airdrop operations.

June 7-10

B-26 and B-29 aircraft undertook radar-directed area attacks against the Iron Triangle at night, raining 500-pound bombs set to explode over the heads of the enemy troops.

These operations were in preparation for UN ground forces' assaults.

Today: Freddy Got Fingered, (PG-13). 7 p.m.
Saturday: Someone Like You, (G), 7 p.m.
Sunday: Blow, (R), 7 p.m.
June 8: One Night at McCool's, (R), 7 p.m.
June 9: Crocodile Dundee in Los Angeles, (PG), 7 p.m.
June 10: Along Came a Spider, (R), 7 p.m.

Freddy Got Fingered: Cast includes Drew Barrymore and Marisa Coughlan. When the 28-year-old Gord decides he wants to be an animator, quits his job and returns home to live with his parents' basement, his father is neither amused nor proud. Dad thinks Gord is a slacker and should grow up, get a real job and get out of the house. But Gord won't budge, and father and son embark on an all-out war that ends up taking them halfway around the world.

Someone Like You: Cast includes Ashley Judd and Greg Kinnear. Jane has everything going for her with her daytime talk show and her hot romance. She begins an extensive study of male behavior to try to find out what makes men tick. Her research leads her to become an overnight sensation/guru for single women everywhere. Throughout her research, she finds both humor and answers where they were least expected.

Blow: Cast includes Johnny Depp, Penelope Cruz. George was just your average small-town American boy who decided to pursue the American dream his way -- by becoming the first American to import cocaine to the United States on large scale. Soon, he was sleeping, breathing and eating money, living out a fantastic no-rules lifestyle many have dreamed about. But no matter what he did, he could never get the only thing he truly wanted: A love that couldn't be taken from him.

Admission: $3 for adults and $1.50 per child.
